Dear Ms. Paske:

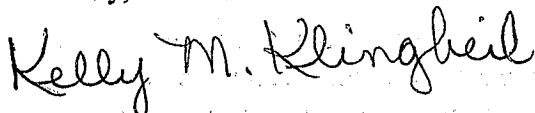

I have learned about the intended area code problem that Northern and West Central Wisconsin will be facing when the PSC will run out of telephone numbers in the year 2009. I currently have a (715) area code, and I think it would cause a lot of problems trying to notify all of my friends and relatives if my area would be given a different area code. It would not be so bad if there would be a message in the telephone system notifying callers about the change. So if you change some people's area codes, please keep that in mind.

However, I believe the "overlay" system would be easier, especially for people who currently have (715) area codes. That way current telephone number holders would not need to change anything when the change happens. I do not know what else to say to support the "overlay" system, except that it would be easier.

So please consider my "voice" and "vote". It is not very fun changing what is already in place. Businesses would need to change their advertisements, their business cards, and probably numerous other things.

Good luck trying to make the most efficient and practical change.

Sincerely,

Kelly M. Klingbeil
